► Residents fled the town of Slave Lake as fire, fanned by fierce winds, swept into the town of 7,000 late yesterday evening.

Slave Lake burns, thousands flee

► Mandatory evacuation proceeding 'as smoothly as it can go':
Mountie ► Equipment, roughly 200 firefighters from B.C., Ontario expected to arrive by tomorrow to help Alberta with its fires

Thousands of people were fleeing their homes yesterday evening as strong winds fanned an out-of-control wildfire into a northern Alberta town where hundreds of buildings were destroyed.

The Town of Slave Lake advised the community of about 7,000 people to protect themselves from the wildfire by heading for parking lots, beaches or large, green open spaces.

A general evacuation was underway.

"The town is on fire. Apparently there have been a lot of homes that have burned down," said RCMP spokeswoman Doris Stapleton.

"There's been no loss of life. There's been no injuries we're aware of," she added.

Authorities warned residents against fleeing on the highways since they were closed.

Stapleton said the RCMP have called in all available resources to assist in getting people out.

Spill cleanup halted

► A wildfire near Peace River forced cleanup operations at the site of a huge oil pipeline spill last month to be suspended.

► Plains Midstream Canada, the pipeline operator, said the decision to remove its staff was made after county officials issued an evacuation order yesterday morning.

Staff Sgt. Mike Proctor of Slave Lake RCMP said later "probably 30 per cent of the structures" had been destroyed by the fire.

He said when the fire hit the town, it was nine square kilometres in size.

Although Proctor said two roads leading out of Slave Lake were closed, residents can get out through the road leading to Athabasca.

Local radio station 92.7 Lake FM reported on its website that its studio in Slave Lake, as well as the city hall and hundreds of buildings, had been lost to the flames.

Duncan MacDonnell, a spokesperson for Alberta Sustainable Resource Development, said firefighting aircraft cannot fly over Slave Lake because there are wind gusts of up to 100 km/h and the smoke is too thick.

"The weather conditions there are freakish — the perfect conditions for a firestorm," MacDonnell said.

Getting out of town yesterday evening wasn't easy, according to one Slave Lake resident, who said the lineup of vehicles was long.

"It's crazy," said Scott, who didn't want his last name used. "We've seen a whole lot of vehicles go to the west and then get redirected back to the east."

Tree death caused by wind, says watchdog

Wind is being blamed for the death of a worker in his 50s who was hit by a tree near Edson on Saturday.

The man was riding a quad 10 kilometres from Highway 16 by Edson when a strong gust knocked over a tree, according to Alberta Occupational Health and Safety spokesperson, Janice Schroder.

The victim was an employee of Calgary's Milenium Geomatics, but it's not known what work he was doing at the time.

Workplace inspectors were on scene yesterday.

Man, 52, dies in auto rollover

The 52-year-old driver of a Ford Mustang has died as the result of a rollover crash on Yellowhead Trail east of 50 Street early yesterday.

The man, who police said was wearing a seatbelt but no shoulder strap, lost control and was ejected from the vehicle when it rolled.

The man was pronounced dead at the scene.

Police have not confirmed if alcohol or speed were factors.

The victim has not been identified pending notification of next of kin.

Finding ways to connect

- Hundreds of volunteers come together for the homeless
- Less fortunate given opportunity to have portraits done

Edmonton's homeless had a chance to feel special yesterday.

Attendees were able to take advantage of several services that were provided for free, thanks to more than 300 volunteers, at the sixth Homeless Connect event held at the Shaw Conference Centre.

Susan McGee, executive director of Homeward Trust, said that a big part of the volunteer's responsibility is making sure everyone attending has a positive experience.

"We've got BMP photography, which is really cool," McGee said. "The interaction of somebody coming and being able to get a portrait and walk out of here with that is something that's really quite moving."

BMP photography, owned by local photographer, Trevor Boller, provided complimentary portraits for the second time at Homeless Connect.

Boller says he didn't understand the value of taking pictures for the homeless until he put them up on his website and cried when he saw the photos.

"For that one time in their lives you can see their worthiness, and that's why we're doing it," Boller said.

Other services provided included haircuts, dental care, health assessments and immunizations.

● NANCY GORDY

Fact sheet

- 1 Homeless Connect started in 2008 and takes place twice every year.
- 2 The one-day, one-location event has more than 80 different services available.
- 3 More than 1,000 people attend Homeless Connect each time.

HEARTLAND PROJECT

Fearing a power-bill hike

Business people have told a hearing their concerns over a new transmission line in the Edmonton area.

The hearing, which resumes today, is for the Heartland project, a proposed 500,000-volt line from Wabamun Lake to an area near Fort Saskatchewan.

Sheldon Fulton of the Industrial Power Consumers Association said business owners have indicated higher bills from building the new power lines will drive them out of Alberta.

AltaSteel president Chris Jager says he worries his power bill — which was $15 million last year — might triple with the new lines.

@METRONWS.CA

NAIT students will have to look for other parking options, as measures to curb their cars on neighbourhood streets are getting the green light from the city.

Spruce Avenue Community League president Ken Johnston said a recent meeting with the city and community members has the wheels of change moving.

"They will automatically get a ticket now," said Johnston, noting that one problem area, on 105 Street between 111 and 112 avenues will soon be residential parking only.

Johnston is hoping 102 Street and the rest of 105 Street will follow suit with single-side parking, residential or one-hour-only by fall.

"I am sending a letter getting (surrounding area residents) to voice their opinions," he said.

Josh Puchailo, acting city parking enforcement co-ordinator, said residents rallying for parking change is not new and that it can happen with two-thirds community support.

Puchailo said the league members appeared accepting of the meeting's outcome.

"It seemed people were satisfied they had power to change it," Puchailo said.

Hangar hosts crafty crowd

► Trade fair focuses on local, non-mass-produced fare by eco-conscious designers ► Brother-and-sister promotional team behind annual fair

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON
@METRONEWS.CA
Young designers were making it all over the Alberta Aviation Hangar yesterday and people lined up in droves to get in on the action.

Make It! The Handmade Revolution is a funky alternative to same-old-same-old craft shows and the brainchild of Vancouver designers Jenna and Chandler Herbut.

With more than 100 local vendors offering "handmade, upcycled and repurposed" wares, pinecones and doilies have no place here.

"I sell a lot to teachers, especially kindergarten teachers," said Julie Morrison of Majesty Handmade Vinyl Accessories, of her Lego jewellery.

The designer started peddling her colourful handbags at city farmer's markets in 2007.

"I made more on one day at the market than all week, so I quit," said Morrison, who crafts her creations from Naugahyde, a vinyl upholstery that's vegan, which means that no animals are harmed.

Cassie Cleary's "fascinat-ors" have drawn a lot of attention since the royal wedding.

The up-and-comer, who creates a funky blend of netting from vintage hats and adornments from spiders to feathers, got her start crafting her own hair accessories.

"Everyone liked and wanted them," said Cleary, creator of Hellbound Hair.

The vendors say they were drawn to the fair because of the organizers' consciences.

"They brought in a real indie feel, and there is nothing mass-produced," said Morrison.

SECOND ATTEMPT

Last launch

With wounded U.S. Representative Gabrielle Giffords on hand to watch, the space shuttle Endeavour is poised to give the work week a roaring and historic start this morning, overcoming wiring problems that grounded it last month.

Giffords' arrival yester-

"Gabrielle is excited for the launch. Do you plan to see history in the making?" her staff tweeted.

NASA officials said conditions, from weather to technical issues, couldn't look much better for the scheduled 8:56 a.m. launch today.

NASA is expecting smaller crowds — 400,000 people instead of 750,000 people — for the second attempt.

Dominique Strauss-Kahn's nickname was "the great seducer." Not even an affair with a subordinate could knock the International Monetary Fund leader off a political path headed for the French presidency.

All that changed with charges he sexually assaulted a maid in his hotel room, a case that generated shock and revulsion, especially in his home country.

The 32-year-old maid told authorities when she entered his suite Saturday afternoon, she thought it was unoccupied. Instead, Strauss-Kahn emerged from the bathroom naked, chased her down a hallway and pulled her into a room,

Unrest on all fronts

► Protesters storm Israeli borders in deadly clashes ► Israel points finger at Syria as orchestrator

Mobilized by calls on Facebook, thousands of Arab protesters marched on Israel's borders with Syria, Lebanon and Gaza yesterday in an unprecedented wave of demonstrations, sparking clashes that left at least 15 people dead in an annual Palestinian mourning ritual marking the anniversary of Israel's birth.

In a surprising turn of events, hundreds of Palestinians and supporters poured across the Syrian frontier and staged riots, drawing Israeli accusations that Damascus, and its ally Iran, orchestrated the unrest to shift attention from an uprising back home. It was a rare incursion from the usually tightly controlled Syrian side and could upset the delicate balance between the two longtime foes.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who heads to Washington at the end of the week, said he ordered the military to act with "maximum restraint" but vowed a tough response to further provocations.

"Nobody should be mistaken. We are determined to defend our borders and sovereignty," he declared in a brief address broadcast live on Israeli TV stations.

- Says finger pointing counterproductive; need positivity to move forward

U.S. Senator John Kerry warned yesterday that already shaky U.S.-Pakistani relations have reached a critical juncture as calls grow in the United States to cut some of the billions of dollars in aid to Islamabad following al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden's killing.

Kerry, who spoke in Afghanistan before travelling to Pakistan, said sober and serious discussion was

"We need to find a way to march forward if it is possible. If it is not possible, there are a set of downside consequences that can be profound,"

U.S. SENATOR JOHN KERRY

needed to resolve the widening rift amid growing suspicion that Pakistan's security forces were complicit in harbouring the al-Qaida leader, who was killed May 2 in a raid by U.S. navy SEALs near Islamabad.

For its part, Pakistan is angry that it was not told about the raid in Abbottabad until after it was completed, saying its sovereignty was violated.

"We want to be hopeful and optimistic that we can work our way through this," he said.

But he made clear that patience was running thin in Washington after it was discovered that the terror leader had been living for years in a compound in a military garrison town that includes Pakistan's equivalent of West Point.

Lowered expectations

► High oil prices force economists to revise predictions for U.S. growth

Economists are scaling back their expectations for U.S. economic growth this year.

A survey by the U.S. National Association for Business Economics predicts gross domestic product will grow 2.8 per cent this year, down from its February prediction that it would grow 3.3 per cent. The outlook for consumer spending and the housing market also weakened, in part because oil prices are expected to remain above $100 US a barrel through 2012.

A panel of 41 economists also said they "remain highly concerned" about the federal deficit, and said growth in the first three months of the year had been weaker than expected.

The predictions reflect the jitters of the American public, who are still recovering from the recession and are now getting squeezed by rising prices for gas, groceries and other household items. Retailers are paying more for fuel, cotton, wood pulp and other raw materials, as well as transport, and they say they have no choice but to pass along the price increases to customers.

Business spending was the bright spot in the NABE predictions. The economists expect investment in business equipment and software to rise 11.9 per cent this year, partly because of pent-up demand after spending cuts during the recession. Corporate profits will rise by 8.5 per cent, they predict.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Growing pains

► The economists also lowered predictions for consumer spending growth (2.8 per cent, down from 3.2 per cent), and housing starts (610,000, down from 660,000). They also expect housing prices to fall 1.5 per cent, after saying they would rise 0.4 per cent.

► They expect oil prices to remain elevated at $103 US a barrel through 2012.

The arrest of Dominique Strauss-Kahn, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, complicates a key European meeting on whether to give Greece billions more in aid, but experts said one man's troubles won't keep the 17 eurozone nations from trying to contain a debt crisis that threatens them all.

The financial leaders are to discuss Greece's economy today in Brussels where experts will brief them on the situation in Athens. Key questions include what conditions to put on more help to the debt-strapped nation, with European leaders unhappy at what they see as limited Greek efforts to raise money by selling government property.

Strauss-Kahn was arrested yesterday in New York on suspicion of sexual assault on a hotel maid. The IMF has named Strauss-Kahn's deputy, John Lipsky, acting managing director.

Strauss-Kahn had to cancel a meeting with Chancellor Angela Merkel in Berlin, where the German public is deeply skeptical about putting up any more money for Greece. Germany, as Europe's largest economy, provided a large chunk of the $151-billion bailout for Greece from the European Union and the IMF last year.

Green light for PlayStation Network

► Sony executive Kazuo Hirai says the company has beefed up security to protect PlayStation customers' personal data. He has also offered "sincere regret" for the hacker intrusion.

► Among 100 million user accounts, Sony says about 92 million can access limited network service

Sony began restoring its PlayStation Network service yesterday after shutting it down almost a month ago because of a massive security breach that affected more than 100 million online accounts.

Restored operations are limited mainly to online gaming, chat and music streaming services. Sony said it aimed to fully restore the PlayStation Network by the end of the month.

Sony also began a phased restoration of its Qriocity movie and music services, which share the PlayStation Network's server.

Kazuo Hirai, chief of Sony's PlayStation video-game unit, said the company has enhanced security measures to protect customers' personal data, and added that Sony had not received any reports of the stolen information being used illegally.

The probe into the hacker attack is ongoing. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No more oil until war over: Libyan producer

Libya's largest petroleum company will not produce oil until the war ends, and that probably holds good for producers across the country, a spokesman said yesterday.

Abdeljalil Mohamed Mayuf, information director of Arab Gulf Oil Co. — responsible for more than one-quarter of Libya's former production of 1.6 million barrels a day — said the company feared further attacks by ruler Moammar Gadhafi's forces.

The decision came after rocket attacks on April 4 badly damaged a pumping station and production facilities at southeast Messla. A pumping station on the pipeline to Tobruk port also came under attack.

"We cannot put an army around each field," Mayuf said, adding that resuming production "depends on this military operation and when Gadhafi leaves."

Libya's three-month revolt against Gadhafi has caused oil prices to soar.

Macau gambles on diversifying economy

The Galaxy Macau, a multi-billion-dollar casino resort complex, opened yesterday as Macau seeks to draw a broader mix of visitors than the high-rolling mainland Chinese who have helped the city become the world's most lucrative gambling market.

The launch of Macau's 34th casino comes as the city seeks to diversify its economy away from gambling after years of soaring growth that helped it overtake Las Vegas as the world's top casino market.

Macau's economy has boomed since a four-decade casino monopoly was broken in 2002, opening the way for U.S. and Australian operators to enter the market with local partners. Monthly casino revenues so far in 2011 have grown by at least 33 per cent, after surging by more than half last year to $23.5 billion.

The former Portuguese colony, once considered seedy and corrupt, now aims to develop cultural attractions that can draw more middle-class families who will stay longer.

Another Galaxy

► The $1.9-billion complex, owned by Galaxy Entertainment Group, has 450 gambling tables and space for up to 1,500 slot machines.

► It also boasts a 40,000-square-foot wave pool and an artificial beach built with 350 tons of white sand. Guests can stay at three hotels with a total of 2,200 rooms.

► The Galaxy Macau is the only casino scheduled to open in the city this year.

► Visitors pose with hostesses at the Galaxy Macau casino, which opened yesterday to the crackle of firecrackers and the beat of a traditional Chinese lion dance.

URBAN COMPASS

TERENCE HARDING
METRO EDMONTON

Sometimes I think if the City of Edmonton were a ship it would be doomed to sink. It would do so because the captain and officers did not know the crew well enough to keep it in good working order. The first rough seas it encountered would make it break apart.

Our city has gone to a $30-million deficit from a surplus of $42 million. It would be nice to blame it on the record snowfalls this winter, but that would be too easy. It would also be incorrect. City-created boondoggle after boondoggle helped contribute to the deficit.

The high-priced help could not figure out how to make the city's traffic-light cameras work properly, and the city lost $3 million in revenue in the first quarter of the year. Apparently, the city wants you to "speed on diesel buses. Current fuel prices show that some really good thinking went into that decision.

Another source of city revenue is parking tickets. Meter prices are going up, and we will have the pleasure of paying more for on-the-street parking than New Yorkers. When asked if that was likely to have a negative impact on downtown revitalization, one of the many mouthpieces employed by the city indicated that he didn't think so and that people could ride bikes or take the bus if they were unwilling to pay higher parking fees.

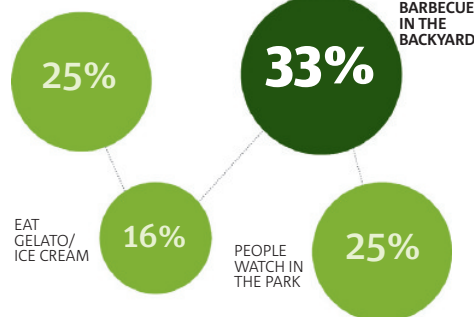

Oh yeah, our transit service is top notch and riding a bike downtown is a pleasure. Give me a break. Anchors aweigh, boys. Anchors aweigh.

HANG OUT ON THE PATIO

Worth mentioning

MONTREAL. Didn't get around to dusting this weekend? Don't worry. It turns out dust might actually hold some benefits for you.

The perennial household nuisance actually purifies the air by neutralizing ozone that can harm our lungs.

Dust can do this because one of its major components is human skin — which contains the ozone-eliminating component squalene.

Humans constantly shed their skin, losing up to 500 million cells per day. At that rate, according to Charles Weschler, who helped author a study whose results were announced last week by the American Chemical Society, it would take a person two to four weeks to turn over all of the skin cells on their body.

It's these skin flakes that clean the air. Their squalene helps neutralize ozone.

Most people might think of ozone as a good thing — and it is, when it's up high in the atmosphere and protecting us from ultraviolet radiation. But when it's down here, closer to us in the air that we breathe, it's a pollutant.

WEIRD NEWS

When you gotta go, you gotta go

A dog that wasn't quite housebroken may have indirectly been responsible for a bomb scare at a New York courthouse.

The trouble began Friday when 19-year-old Melvin Ruffin arrived at a court complex in Central Islip, N.Y., following a long bus ride from his home in Bellport.

During the trip, another passenger's chihuahua urinated on his backpack.

So he stashed the wet bag in some bushes while he went inside to answer a disorderly conduct citation.

But a retired police officer saw the bag and alerted security.

The bomb squad was ultimately called in. Officers used a robot to determine the bag didn't contain anything harmful. Ruffin tells Newsday that authorities let him off with a warning to be more careful next time about where he left his stuff.

Is Okkervil primed for the mainstream?

► Despite positive press, band's singer-songwriter is not sure commercial breakthrough lies ahead

Okkervil River has made its name on literate, orchestral indie-rock, a creative concoction that has proven to be extremely successful for other bands over the past year.

However, as they've watched their peers skyrocket to the top of the charts, the cerebral Texas outfit has yet to find a large audience, and the band's singer-songwriter Will Sheff says he's not necessarily expecting a commercial breakthrough with the group's newly released sixth record, I Am Very Far.

"This is something people say all the time," Sheff, 34, said in a telephone interview. "As we went through our almost 15 years of being a band, we would watch bands like the Decemberists and the Arcade Fire kind of be this tiny little band ... that would suddenly be five billion times bigger than us months later."

"At first, it was really frustrating because we felt like we had been doing our thing that we do for a really, really long time. And what got frustrating was people who hadn't heard of us (who) thought we were influenced by these bands that had half the lifespan of us or whatever."

► Okkervil River's frontman Will Sheff, centre, produced the band's new album I Am Very Far himself. "I am incredibly proud of this record," he said. "I think it's our best one."

"But at the same time, I never really wanted to be a mega-huge stadium rock star. I've really realized that the amount of constraint that you have to be under when you're trying to be successful, it's frustrating. You really have to stress about the perception of every last little thing you do. ... I didn't get into the music business to feel career pressure."

"I (like) the manoeuvrability that we have, where I basically get to do whatever ... I want, and if I want to make a record (of) throat

11
The 11 tracks on I Am Very Far achieve a grandiosity that was the result of ambitious studio sessions that occasionally featured two guitarists, two pianists, two drummers and seven guitarists playing simultaneously.

singing and nobody buys it, I don't have to feel bad."

And yet, for all Sheff's hard-earned sovereignty, plenty of observers seem to think I Am Very Far might propel his band to new commercial heights anyway. The Guardian's four-star review asserted that Sheff and co. "seem intent on following the Arcade Fire route to mass accessibility," while the BBC called the band "Wilco waiting to happen" — before arguing that I Am Very Far would signal the band's arrival.

Sheff admits to having absorbed some of that positive press, and doesn't deny the subsequent relief that washed over him.

"It makes me really happy," he said. "When I was making this record, I was really aware that ... if you really loved (the band's previous albums) The Stage Names and The Stand Ins, that you might not like this record or it might not give you the exact same thing that you wanted."

"And I was aware that might make certain people disgruntled or something like that, so it was nice to see that people were responding to the record."

CHARLIE SHEEN, GIVING ADVICE TO ASHTON KUTCHER, AND REFERENCING HIS FEUD WITH FORMER BOSS CHUCK LORRE

Big shoes (and shirts) to fill

JEMAL COUNTSS/GETTY IMAGES

► Ashton Kutcher

There's a new man on the scene at Two and a Half Men. But is Ashton Kutcher man enough?

With Friday's announcement that Kutcher will be replacing Charlie Sheen, viewers could begin to wonder how he will be plugged into the hit sitcom's tight little world. Can his particular appeal fill the void of the caustically droll Sheen? And just who the heck will his character be?

Neither CBS nor Chuck Lorre, the series' creator, were giving any hints as they confirmed the deal to bring Kutcher into a show where Sheen's character was the comic centre, portraying an advertising jingle writer with a playboy lifestyle and an overwrought brother.

Kutcher, who first found sitcom stardom more than a decade ago on That '70s Show, specializes in puppy dog wholesomeness and laid-back, goofy sexiness. He's perhaps the anti-Sheen.

"We are so lucky to have someone as talented, joyful and just plain remarkable as Ashton joining our family," said Lorre, also the show's executive producer.

"Added to that is the deep sigh of relief knowing that our family stays together. If I was any happier, it'd be illegal."

"I can't replace Charlie Sheen," said Kutcher, adding that he plans to work hard "to entertain the hell out of people."

Kutcher's quote was the news release's sole mention of Sheen, who, two months ago, was fired by Warner Bros. Television when it cut short production of the show's eighth season following Sheen's public implosion through hard partying and angry criticism of Lorre.

Now Charlie is gone, and, with him, the show's dependably winning formula.

The deal to replace him with Kutcher apparently came together quickly, following reports this week that negotiations with film actor Hugh Grant to join the show had fallen through. A deadline on deciding whether the show

Perspective

Brad Adgate, an analyst for the firm Horizon Media, gave his thoughts on Ashton Kutcher replacing Charlie Sheen on Two and a Half Men.

► "He's not a star, I don't think, the way Charlie Sheen is," Adgate said. "(But) it's a hit show and it's something worth trying before you pack it in. You just never know."

would continue was looming, with CBS set to unveil its fall schedule to advertisers in New York next Wednesday.

Kutcher is not as well-known as Sheen but, at age 33, is a dozen years younger and has a huge flock of fans who check in on his every utterance on Twitter.

No longer Gaga over her man

► Luc Carl joined pop star on tour, but stress of the road and Gaga's busy schedule were too much for the couple

After almost a year of dating, Lady Gaga and boyfriend Luc Carl have called it quits, she discloses to Graham Norton.

"No, I don't have a boyfriend and haven't been on any dates recently," the singer says during an interview on his BBC talk show.

Though Carl had been accompanying her on her recent tour, the stress of the road and Gaga's hectic schedule reportedly became too much.

But keeping busy is normal for the pop star: "At a certain point exhaustion becomes a state of being, and mentally I have to be strong and overcome it. It's like a cloud, a fog really, that hovers over me," she recently told V magazine. "But in a way I will never escape it, because in truth when I do have to time to rest I end up writing a song, or editing a film or creating a new project for the fans to be involved in."

"Please enjoy making fun of me on the World Wide Web."

Perry has previously been to rehab twice, in 1997 and 2001, and has struggled with prescription medications and alcohol in the past.

10 things not to say to your recent graduate

► After the caps and gowns have been hung up and diplomas have been framed, it's time for grads to find work ► As a parent you want to help, but some things are better left unsaid

The playing of Pomp and Circumstance is over. The mortar boards have been thrown in the air. And the diplomas are hung up on the wall.

Your son or daughter is now home and looking for work in his or her field during one of the toughest economic climates in decades. How bad is it, exactly? In the U.S. in 2010, college graduates had a 9.4 per cent jobless rate. Before the recession it was 5.5 per cent.

Many grads have moved back home, and this spring is sure to see another wave of boomerang kids moving out of the dorm for the last time and heading reluctantly back to their old bedrooms.

This is not necessarily because they want to, but because they can't pay rent elsewhere on their own.

As a parent you want to help. But what to say?

It's an emotional time, and nerves may be frayed. You certainly don't want to start doing their laundry again, but you also don't want to provoke a fight.

With that in mind, here are 10 things not to say to a recent college graduate.

1 "I'm sure we all need a break from stress, but you need a job before you know what real stress is."

2 "Since you are applying for jobs now, you might want to remove those beer pong pictures from your Facebook page."

3 "Some time in the military never hurt the old resumé."

4 "You may recall that we were not thrilled with your choice of a creative writing degree, but your contention that we promised to support you until you sell your first novel does reveal a truly creative mind."

5 "Remember that I plan to retire in six years, and it's important that you be paying your share of Social Security by then."

6 "I don't care what your roommate told you. Not Everyone has a trust fund."

7 "I'm sure Tiffany's surgery will help her job prospects, but we are not paying for a nose job."

8 "It's too bad you didn't find a nice (man/woman) in college, because you'll never again be around so many eligible people." (On the other hand, asking, 'You're still with him (her)?' might not go over well either.)

9 "We forgot to mention we've turned your old room into our scrapbooking centre. How do you feel about sleeping on the couch and putting your stuff in a storage unit?"

10 "I heard that they're hiring ... in China."

Preparation:

1 In a dry non-stick skillet over low heat, lightly toast sliced almonds until they are golden brown. Set aside.

2 In a bowl, whisk the egg and egg whites together. Season the mix with salt and pepper and set aside.

3 In the same skillet over medium heat, heat oil and cook the garlic until it is lightly browned, about 1 minute. Add the mushrooms and spinach and cook until the spinach has wilted, 2 to 3 minutes. Add the tomatoes and cook, stirring, just 1 minute more.

4 Reduce heat and gently pour the eggs into the pan, but do not stir. Cook and gently push and lift the eggs with a heat-proof spatula while tilting the pan from one side to the other until eggs are set.

5 Spread goat cheese onto the egg mixture with toasted almonds. Slide scramble from the pan to a plate and serve.

A diet of pure plastic

► Many sea animals eat plastic, mistaking it for food ► A shocking sight: seabirds' bellies are bursting with our everyday plastic

ELISABETH BRAW
LIFE@METRONWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Jan van Franeker spends his day examining the stomachs of dead seabirds. He doesn't see many small fish there. Instead he finds plastic — and in large amounts.

"Birds have an average of 0.3 grams of plastic inside their stomachs," van Franeker explains.

"That may not sound a lot, but if you translate that into human terms, it's like having a lunch box full of plastic inside your gut."

Franeker, a marine biologist at Holland's Institute for Marine Resources and Ecosystem Studies, specializes in the Northern fulmar, a seabird found in the North Atlantic.

The fulmars are not alone in eating plastic. Other birds, dolphins and seals encounter plastics in their feeding areas and mistake it for food. Even whales have been discovered with stomachs full of plastic bags.

They've been munching plastic since the material began littering our oceans some 50 years ago. Even today, ships off the coasts of developed countries continue to dump their waste into oceans.

Every year, 20,000 tons of waste is dumped in the North Sea alone.

When RW Henry analyzes the stomachs of dead albatrosses, he finds all sorts of things, from toothbrushes to plastic skulls.

Once he even discovered a plastic Buddha.

"Albatrosses take their food from the ocean surface," explains the scientist from University of California, Santa Cruz.

"They eat dead fish that has floated up, and plastics don't look that different. Sometimes the plastic ruptures their stomach, but many birds also die because they've eaten so much plastics that there's no space for food."

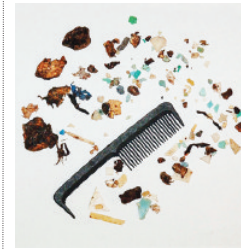

Biologists face a research challenge as marine animals are always mobile.

"How many animals affected by trash is a problem that we're just starting to quantify," Henry says.

Between 1999 and 2008, plastic rubbish in the world's oceans increased by 700 per cent.

Face it, your workplace doesn't 'like' the Book

► Overusing social media at the office? ► Someone is watching you

DREW HINSHAW
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

So you thought you could sneak in some Facebook time on the company dime? Woe unto thee.

Workers who reckon they can tweet on the clock are just cuckoo, career coaches warn. Spiteful higher-ups could be watching, and should you waste too much time scrolling through Twitter feeds you could find yourself checking into your apartment, searching for jobs.

"That's the number one thing people don't consider," says Sue Thompson, a work life coach. "Someone is watching you – and they have a right to."

"It all comes down to knowing your organizational culture," Shirin Khamisa, founder of Careers By Design, adds.

Many a manager, she notes, may take a laissez-faire posture toward their employee's time. Others may expect you to keep a clean profile – and use it to relentlessly promote the company.

And still others, Thompson warns, may have your page history wiretapped and scrutinized as they prepare a case for your dismissal – dishonourably discharged for too much dilly-dallying.

"Your boss may be getting a report each month about how many of their employees are on the Internet each day," she cautions.

Breaking the Habit

There are no miracle come-down drugs for an Internet fix, Thompson says

– "just discipline."

"Look, this is work, and you have to have the discipline to say to yourself, 'I will not check Twitter until I go to lunch and check it on my phone,'" she says.

But for companies that do permit Facebook in moderation, the harder task can be limiting the fraction of the workday you squander online.

We all need little mid-day breaks, Psychology Professor Tim Pynchyl notes, and we take them constantly, whether consciously or not. "That's part of our nature," he says.

The trick, he offers, is to find novel ways of procrastinating: like taking a walk, or calling a friend.

"You acknowledge that break more by picking up the phone and dialing it," he explains.

"You have to know what energizes you," Khamisa agrees, and it's likely not more screen time.

Six years ago Ted Reader seemed to have it all. "The King of the Q" had built an empire around his name and smokin' personality, writing award-winning cookbooks, starring on television and touring North America. But Ted was desperately unhappy. "I was on the phone, travelling, and working hard. I was carrying some weight and I was angry and bitter all the time," Reader took stock of his life and realized he had reached a turning point. He downsized his business, went back to his BBQ and started to cook.

Today he's a happy man, husband and the father of two young children. His cookbooks, sauces and spice rubs fly off the supermarket shelves. "I'm living life and I'm having a good time at it. I want to share that with people. I'm working harder today than I ever have but I'm having fun."

Impact lost in lectures: Experts

► Education leaders meet at the University of B.C. to explore new ways of keeping students longing to learn

Physics instructors should get away from university lectures and instead engage students with an approach that involves clicker response questions, small group tasks and class discussion, says Nobel prize winner Carl Wieman.

And to do otherwise is “bad teaching,” he says.

Wieman and colleagues at the University of British Columbia compared the standard lecture format for classes of 200-plus students with the experimental “deliberate practice” approach for a week on two large sections of an introductory undergraduate physics course.

Students in both groups covered the same material during Week 12 of the course and wrote identical tests, but there was better attendance, higher engagement and twice the learning in the section taught using the new approach.

standing in front of them,” Wieman said from Washington, D.C.

The lecture course was led by a highly rated charismatic faculty member, but the experimental course for the week was led by Louis Deslauriers, a trained but inexperienced postdoctoral student, assisted by Ellen Schelew – both co-authors of the study.

When asked if the approach should be used in high school and other university-level science classes, Wieman said the methods should be used everywhere.

“This is clearly more effective learning. Everybody should be doing it. It should be wholesale transformation,” he said.

“You’re practising bad teaching if you’re not doing this. That’s what the data says. It’s high time everybody changed.”

Wieman won the 2001 Nobel Prize in Physics for the creation of a new form of matter, and is currently on leave from positions at UBC’s Vancouver campus and the University of Colorado. He’s working for the Obama administration as associate director for science in the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy.

► The remote hand-held devices enable students to register their responses to questions posed by the instructor.

► “One thing we’ve noticed is whenever you change something it increases student engagement and even student learning during the initial stages of that change,” he said.

Student scientists shine in national contest

► Marshall Zhang of Bayview Secondary School in Toronto holds his first prize award at the National Research's 2011 Biotalent Challenge Awards.

The discovery of a drug cocktail that might have potential some day to help patients with cystic fibrosis (CF) took first place last Tuesday at a national science contest, and a method of making vegan sorbet was the runner-up.

The judges were left in awe at the level of science that participants brought to bear at a young age, said the chair of the judging panel, Dr. Luis Barreto, former vice-president of immunization and science policy at Sanofi Pasteur.

The students are driven by curiosity and “we know the future of Canada is in good hands as Canada looks into creating the R and D strategy for the country,” he said in an interview after the awards were presented at the National Research Council Canada laboratories in Ottawa.

“The constant feeling with all the judges was I would hire these guys not as my summer student but as my post-doc ... every one of them. It was very difficult to actually identify the first five.”

Marshall Zhang, a Grade 11 student in Richmond

Hill, Ont., used the Canadian SCINET supercomputing network at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto to identify how two drugs interacted with a specific part of a mutant protein that’s responsible for most cases of CF.

He then proved what he’d found using living cells in culture.

Derrick Rose scored 28 points, Luol Deng contained LeBron James and the Chicago Bulls struck first in the Eastern Conference finals, pulling away to beat the Miami Heat 103-82 in Game 1 last night.

The Bulls are off to a good start in this series after sweeping the Heat during the regular season. They went on a 10-0 run midway through the third quarter, then pulled away in the fourth. As the final minutes ticked away, fans could not contain themselves, chanting "Over-rated!" and "Beat the Heat!"

Game 2 is Wednesday night in Chicago, and they would certainly take another performance like last night's.

Rose settled down after committing three early turnovers and showed why he is the MVP. He hit three three-pointers and the Bulls converted 10 of 21 in all.

Chris Bosh led Miami with 30 points and nine rebounds.

► Pair of third-period goals gives Canucks comeback over Sharks

Henrik Sedin and Kevin Bieksa scored goals 79 seconds apart in the third period as the Vancouver Canucks battled back to defeat the San Jose Sharks 3-2 last night in the opening game of the NHL's Western Conference final.

The quick goals pumped some energy into a game that had lacked excitement. Maxim Lapierre had the other Vancouver goal.

Joe Thornton, with a goal and an assist, and Patrick Marleau, on the power play, scored for San Jose. The Sharks led 2-1 after 40 minutes.

Sedin put Vancouver ahead 3-2 on a power play at 8:21 of the third after Dany Heatley was called for elbowing. The Canuck cap-Bieksa tied the game at 7:03. He took a pass from Alex Burrows and then launched a rocket past Niemi's stick side.

Game 2 will be in Vancouver on Wednesday. The series moves to San Jose for games Friday and Sunday.

Deficits have been easy for the Boston Bruins to overcome so far in the playoffs.

So now that they trail the Tampa Bay Lightning 1-0 in the Eastern Conference finals, the Bruins are preparing for tomorrow night's Game 2 the same way they have every other time they've trailed since the playoffs started.

"We're a confident group here. Nothing seems to rattle this group," centre Chris Kelly said yesterday during off-day media availability at the TD Garden. "We go out and play each game hard and see what happens after 60 minutes, or however long it takes for the game to finish, and look for the ► Jose Bautista, left, is congratulated by teammate Edwin Encarnacion yesterday after his two-run home run, his third homer of the game, in the sixth inning in Minnesota.

Bautista's bat hotter than ever

Jose Bautista hit three homers for the first time in his career yesterday, adding to his major league-leading total and sending the Toronto Blue Jays to an 11-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins and a sweep of their three-game series.

Jose Molina also had three hits for the Jays, who scored in each of the first four innings. Yunel Escobar and Aaron Hill each had a pair of hits for Toronto.

The victory extended Toronto's winning streak to a season-best five games and allowed the Blue Jays (20-20) to get back to the .500 mark for the first time in nearly a month.

Trevor Plouffe doubled and scored twice for Minnesota, which has lost eight straight and 14 of 17 as it heads out for a weeklong West Coast road trip.

Bautista, who led the majors with 54 homers last year, continued his recent tear. The right-fielder is hitting .415 with 13 homers and 21 RBIs over the past 19 games, and his 16 home runs this season are just two behind the total of the entire Twins team.

After popping out to third base in the first inning, Bautista hit a solo home run to the second deck of left field off of Twins starter Brian Duensing in the third.

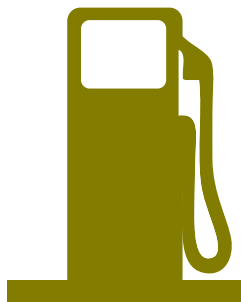

In the fourth, Bautista hit a line drive solo homer just inside the left-field line off reliever Kevin Slowey.

In the sixth, his two-run homer to right-centre just cleared the 23-foot-high wall and gave Toronto an 11-3 lead. Before hitting in to a fielder's choice in the eighth, Bautista had homered four times in five plate appearances going back to Saturday.

Brandon Morrow (2-2) limited the Twins to three runs over five innings to pick up the victory.

Boogaard's brain donated to science

Minnesota hockey fans planned a memorial for Derek Boogaard last night to honour the former NHL tough guy who was found dead in his apartment last week, five months after a season-ending concussion that left his family wondering if his career as an enforcer had damaged his brain.

Boogaard's agent and a spokeswoman for the Boston University School of Medicine confirmed yesterday that the family of the 28-year-old forward agreed to donate his brain to researchers who will look for signs of a degenerative disease often found in athletes who sustain repeated hits to the head.

"It's an amazing thing he did and his family did. Hopefully, that'll bring some information," agent Ron Salcer told The Associated Press. "We don't know exactly the impact that the concussions might have played."

Boogaard, who missed the last half of last season with the New York Rangers due to a concussion, was found dead in his Minneapolis apartment Friday. Police said there were no outward signs of trauma; results of an autopsy are expected to take several weeks.

So far, the only indication that Boogaard's death might be related to concussions is the fact that his family signed papers to donate his brain to the BU Center for the Study of Traumatic Encephalopathy. The donation was first reported by the Star Tribune of Minneapolis.

Djokovic beats Nadal to lengthen 2011 streak

Novak Djokovic continued his recent mastery over top-ranked Rafael Nadal with a 6-4, 6-4 win in the Italian Open final yesterday that stretched the Serb's unbeaten start to the year to 37 matches.

The second-ranked Djokovic has beaten Nadal in all four finals they have played this year and defeated the Spaniard for the first time on clay in last week's Madrid Open final.

Djokovic is now the first player to beat Nadal on clay twice in the same year, a feat that comes exactly a week before the French Open starts.

"I definitely am amazed with my playing," Djokovic said. "But there's no time to enjoy it — I've got to get ready for Roland Garros."

Djokovic's edge over Nadal could enable him to overtake his rival for the No. 1 ranking the week after the French Open.

"He's doing amazing things. Every match he's very tough mentally and physically," Nadal said. "I'm doing everything I can. I can't ask myself any more now. I'm doing very well but one player is doing better than me. I am waiting every week to try solutions, so let's see."

Djokovic's streak this year trails only John McEnroe's 42-0 start in 1984.

Overall, Djokovic has won 39 consecutive matches stretching back to Serbia's Davis Cup triumph in December, sixth best in the Open era, seven behind Guillermo Vilas's record set in 1977.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 If you need some extra cash you will find ways to get it today.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 What yesterday seemed so vague will become crystal clear today.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 What happens today may look like bad news but this particular cloud has a huge silver lining.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 If you find yourself at odds with the status quo today that's a good sign. Be a catalyst for change.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Stand up and speak up for what you believe in. The more others try to shout you down the more you know they have something to hide.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 If you feel in need of a break now is a good time to start making plans.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You want nothing more than to be left alone with your thoughts.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Some of the things you have to say today won't go down too well.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Be secretive about your plans. You can be too chatty sometimes.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Any doubts about what you are doing will disappear over the next 24 hours.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 A Venus-Mercury conjunction will help you say the right things to people you love.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. You have become a bit too predictable of late and need to do something to remind people that you are not to be taken for granted. Think about it. SALLY BROMPTON
